Department of Transportation Collector Training

In 2001, the Department of Transportation issued a rule requiring that personnel collecting urine specimens for DOT drug testing meet the training requirements in 49 CFR 40.33.

Each Collector must receive qualification training that includes steps to complete a collection correctly and how to handle problem collections and fatal flaws. The regulations require that the collector demonstrate proficiency in the collection process by completing five mock collections

Collectors must receive refresher training every five years to continue serving as a DOT Collector.
